FRANKLY SPEAKING

a message from CEO Frank Kim

FRANK KIM

It's officially Fiscal Year 2017/18, and the County of Orange has a robust budget of more than $6.2 billion for the coming year. Although the fiscal year has barely begun, we already have many projects and programs to celebrate.

First, we recently completed an important upgrade to the CAPS+ system. The County's financial, procurement, human resources and payroll information systems, collectively known as the "CAPS+" (County-wide Accounting and Personnel System) system, is a vital component of the County's infrastructure. Over time, the aging program started to negatively impact the County and its business operations and the state of the CAPS+ system reached a point where an upgrade became critical. The upgrade started in October 2014 and culminated in May 2017. While many departments played a lead role in the upgrade, the project's success was a County-wide team effort. Learn more about the CAPS+ upgrade here.

In an effort to streamline applying for jobs at the County, whether a new job, a transfer or a promotion, Human Resource Services (HRS) has launched the new Career Pages website. The updated interface is easy to navigate and will help the County recruit and retain the best and the brightest. Visit the new site here.

Finally, I believe one of the most important things to celebrate is our employees. Every month in County Connection we highlight an employee from a different department. This month, I was very impressed reading the story of Deputy District Attorney Patti Sanchez. You'll enjoy learning about the unique unit she works in, and I hope Patti's positive outlook and determination to make a difference despite adversity will inspire you. We wish you well in retirement, Patti.

As we kick off summer in Orange County, I want to encourage you to take advantage of the great summer offerings around the County. Whether it's going to an OC Parks concert, visiting one of our beautiful beaches, cooling off in an OC Public Library, or searching for the perfect picture to submit for the Summer OC photo contest, take advantage of the longer days and remember to enjoy all that Orange County has to offer.

"Everybody in this County family knows someone who is struggling...it would be nice if this village came together to make sure everyone in our county family would graduate, it would really change the world."

-PATTI SANCHEZ

PATTI SANCHEZ

Deputy District Attorney, Truancy Court

OC District Attorney

Feature by Lauren Arrigo, CEO Communications Intern

A small girl is throwing starfish back into the ocean one by one. When the girl is asked why she is doing this, she says she is trying to save them. She is told that there are far too many on the beach for her to save and that the situation seemed hopeless; however, unfazed, she continues to cast them into the water saving as many as she can.

Patti Sanchez, a Deputy District Attorney in the Truancy Unit, says this story illustrates what she values most about her job. Her work in the Truancy Courts has been an unwavering attempt to help struggling students in Orange County get back on track. This story of a small girl casting starfish back into the ocean has stuck with her through the years as a reminder of the importance of her work.

Patti has been with the County for 31 years, and on July 20, she will be retiring. Her work with the Truancy Response Program entails giving seminars at local schools to students and their parents on how to return their children to the right path to overcome low attendance and behavioral concerns. She also connects with students and parents on a more individual level to find solutions to a student's problems.

"My role is to empower the parents and tell the kids that what they're doing is not going to get them where they need to be," Patti said.

Though she may have to be the bearer of bad news to parents, she does so with respect and a frank sense of humor that leaves families motivated to turn their situation around. She was even told by one thankful parent, “That was the best motivational speech I have heard in three or four years.”

She admits at times it can be challenging knowing that you can’t save each student from the path they are on, but her advice is to focus on the success stories, and in Patti’s long career, there are plenty to focus on.

The successes resulting from Patti’s work, as well as the impact she has on children’s lives, are evident in the fact that a lot of the young people she works with end up keeping in touch with Patti and letting her know about milestones in their lives. With a laugh, she shared how kids would visit her after earning their diplomas and tell her they just wanted to “come back and slam dunk this in your face because you said I couldn’t do it, but I know that you were just using reverse psychology on me.”

“Kids end up in our court system because they don’t have goals and dreams,” Patti said, and she aims to get to the root of children’s truancy problems by helping instill them with a sense of motivation and empathy.

Patti has taken it upon herself to be an example to the young people she works with, demonstrating an immense passion in her career and a commitment to volunteering. Whether she is quilting blankets for children who have recently been separated from their parents, or organizing fieldtrips, she always finds a way to give back. This does not go unnoticed by the kids. Patti said that one student she had worked with in Truancy Court made the observation that, “Ms. Patti tells the kids to do these things, but guess what, she does them herself.”

Though she says she has “been around the block” with her impressive tenure at the County District Attorney’s Office including positions in the domestic violence unit, workers compensation unit, the mental health unit, the arson unit and many others over the last three decades, the last 10 years in the Truancy Response Program have been among her favorite.

If there is one thing Patti could share with all 18,000 County employees it would be: “Everybody in this County family knows someone who is struggling... it would be nice if this village came together to make sure everyone in our county family would graduate, it would really change the world.”

Patti recalled hearing Senator Kamala Harris, then the California Attorney General, saying the best way to reduce the number of people in the jail system is to ensure each child graduates from high school. She said Harris’ words struck a chord with her and has kept this idea with her during her years in Truancy Court.

Her list of incredible successes continues, checking off breast cancer survivor, Avon Walk to End Breast Cancer volunteer, and Anaheim Angels Honorary Bat Girl on the list. Because of her fight with breast cancer, she and her daughter now fundraise for the Avon Walk, and Patti volunteers, helping participants along the way. Because of her selfless volunteering, her daughter recommended her to be an Honorary Bat Girl for her beloved Anaheim Angels, where she got to throw the first pitch on May 14, 2017, sport a bright pink bat, and watch from the first row —a very well deserved day of recognition.

After discussing all of the ins and outs of her career at the County, Patti laughed, “Why am I retiring?”

Fortunately, her plans for retirement include returning to the County to volunteer two to three days a week. Patti pulled out a binder full of diplomas from students who had once been on a troubled path, until they came to see her. She looked over it, beaming at all of the starfish she was able to toss back into the ocean.

PLEASE SEND PROFILE SUBJECTS FOR COUNTY CONNECTION!

Do you know someone who would make a good employee profile? We’re looking for staff-level employees who love their job and carry the flag with enthusiasm both for their agency and the County as a whole. Send submissions to jennifer.nentwig@ocgov.com.

JOIN THE FIGHT AGAINST SEX TRAFFICKING IN ORANGE COUNTY

As you may be aware, the Social Services Agency along with numerous agency partners successfully re-launched the Orange County Transportation Authority's (OCTA) "Be The One" campaign to bring awareness about child sex trafficking. While this subject may be uncomfortable for some, it is important that we are all aware of the signs of child sex trafficking because it is happening here in Orange County. Below are some important facts regarding child sex trafficking.

MYTH: Child sex trafficking is rare and doesn't happen where we live.

REALITY: It is widespread but often hidden and can only be uncovered by vigilant people who report their concerns. Increasing numbers of sex-trafficked youth are being identified in Orange County.

MYTH: Sexually exploited and trafficked youth are criminals.

REALITY: The Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children is a serious form of child abuse and the children involved are victims. Local law enforcement and child protection officials work together to obtain treatment for these victims.

MYTH: Child sexual exploitation only happens to girls and young women.

REALITY: It happens to boys, young men and transgender youth as well— although the warning signs are often missed. These youth may find it more difficult to talk about what is happening to them.

MYTH: Child sexual exploitation only happens to children who are in care, who come from a 'bad' family, or are of a particular race, religion or economic background.

REALITY: Any child can become a victim. Young people are more at risk if they are 'vulnerable' – but there are many types of vulnerability. Child sexual exploitation can occur in different ways and in different situations, even from being approached for a "modeling" opportunity at the mall.

MYTH: Sexually exploited youth are free to leave when they want.

REALITY: Victims of commercial sexual exploitation are often subjected to ongoing physical, sexual, and psychological abuse, threats and intimidation that prevent them from leaving.

MYTH: If a child consents to sex, it's not unlawful.

REALITY: The sexual exploitation of any young person aged under 18 is child abuse and needs to be stopped, or even better, prevented from happening in the first place. Even if a young person 'seems' to have given consent it is not 'true' consent if they have been manipulated or pressured into giving it.

To find out more about the "Be The One" campaign please visit BeTheOneOC.com. If you suspect someone to be a victim of sex trafficking, please call your local law enforcement or the National Human Trafficking Hotline (888) 373-7888.

CAPS+

COMPLETES SYS

The County's financial, procurement, human resources and payroll information systems, collectively known as the "CAPS+" (County-wide Accounting and Personnel System) system, is a vital component of the County's infrastructure. This system is required for County operations such as preparing financial plans, budget development, maintaining financial records, generating financial statements, collecting costs for federal and state program billings, procuring goods and services, and making vendor and trust fund payments. The system also processes the County's payroll and is used in administering personnel records. A variety of employee payroll information is managed through the system including, but not limited to, employee deductions, pay class, leave balances, weekly pay history, etc. The system manages the employees' positions including, but not limited to, title, grade, pay rate, department and much more. The core of CAPS+ is comprised of multiple Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) Advantage software products.

The Information Technology environment is fluid, dynamic, and in a state of constant improvement. CAPS+ is a sophisticated system that requires a regular maintenance program to keep it abreast of system improvements and environmental changes. The maintenance program focuses upon the system's hardware and software architecture. The County is disciplined in ensuring that proper system maintenance is sustained. Due to budgetary constraints, the County had to put the CAPS+ system's maintenance program on hold for an extended period.

During this time, the state of the CAPS+ system reached a point where an upgrade became critical. The County had last performed a maintenance upgrade to its CAPS+ Advantage Finance/ Procurement software system in July 2009 and to its CAPS+ Advantage Human Resources/Payroll software system in March 2011. The lack of maintenance started to negatively impact the County and its business operations.

The Auditor-Controller's office began formulating upgrade plans in 2014. The Auditor-Controller's IT team, OCIT, and County vendors (CGI, SAIC, and ATOS) developed a three-phase approach to the much needed upgrade. The systems' hardware platform would be addressed in the first phase of the effort. The second phase would address the CAPS+ Finance/ Procurement system's software upgrade. In the third and final phase, the CAPS+ Human Resources/Payroll system's software would be upgraded. The Board of Supervisors approved the initial first phase of the effort in October 2014.

The first phase of the project had to address the CAPS+ hardware platform. The original platform resided upon IBM's P595 system which was over nine years old and had reached its end of life. In fact, system failures were being experienced. The new platform design replaced the old County equipment with the new IBM AIX P8 series system and expanded its memory with the addition of V7000 and V9000 SANS units to increase memory, storage, and flexibility of operations. The new hardware platform was moved into production in May 2015.

The CAPS+ upgrade team then swung its focus onto the upgrade of the CAPS+ Finance/Purchasing and Human Resources/Payroll software systems. The team planned to first address the Finance/Purchasing system for phase two. Phase three focused upon the Human Resources/Payroll system and was initiated while work on phase two was still underway. The Auditor-Controller's office gained Board of Supervisors approval for the next two phases in October 2015.

The County uses CGI's Advantage ERP application at the core of its CAPS+ Finance/Procurement and Human Resources/Payroll software systems. During phase two, the Finance/Procurement software system was upgraded from CGI Advantage version 3.7.0.1 to version 3.10.0.1. Phase two efforts got under way in December 2015. The system was successfully moved into production in October 2016. In phase three, the Human Resources/Payroll system was upgraded from CGI Advantage version 3.8.1 to version 3.11. The final phase of the effort started in May 2016 and was moved into production in May 2017.

The Auditor-Controller's IT team, OCIT, CGI, SAIC and ATOS all worked very hard on this effort and should be recognized for their efforts; however, this project was not completed in a vacuum. CEO/Procurement and the Human Resource Services department worked hard providing subject matter experts, knowledge, time and tremendous effort to the project. All County departments participated in quarterly team meetings. The departments also kept themselves abreast of the project's progress through the use of email blasts and visits to the project's web site. Open communications and transparency were essential. When ready, the County's departments also sent end-users through heavy training programs to ensure that they were properly trained on the upgraded systems. The teamwork experienced through this effort is one in which the County can be proud. The challenge of upgrading such a sophisticated system was successfully met head-on.

The Auditor-Controller's CAPS+ Finance/Purchasing and Human Resources/Payroll software systems' upgrade was a huge success for the County. The County's Accounting ERP system received a much needed maintenance overhaul to this key asset. The multi-year, $8.6 million, multi-phased project was completed on-time, on-budget and within scope. The project's success was not the result of a single department, but of a Countywide team effort.

IMPROVE YOUR FITNESS THIS SUMMER THROUGH HIGH INTENSITY INTERVAL TRAINING

The quarterly “Steps” wellness newsletter is coming to your home in the mail soon! This quarter it will feature Summer Wellness Tips from the County’s new Wellness Coach, Holly Lattimer, the results of the “Right this Weigh” Challenge, information on the OC Healthy Steps program and information on how you can use High Intensity Interval Training to complete a daily workout in under 15 minutes.

This quarter’s newsletter features the article “Fifteen Minutes (or less) to Fitness,” which looks at High Intensity Interval Training (HIIT). HIIT involves short, intense bursts of exercise with less intense moves or complete rest in between. Because HIIT can be done in less than 15 minutes, it allows you to be very efficient with your workouts. That means you can spend less time in the gym each week but still benefit from the fat-burning, metabolism-boosting and heart-pounding benefits of a longer, more traditional training session.

Reaping the healthy benefits of a longer workout in less time sounds good, but does it work? Researchers have found that repeatedly pushing the body close to its exercise limits for very brief periods, interspersed with periods of rest, can actually be more effective than continuous moderate activity at improving cardiovascular, respiratory, metabolic and mechanical functions.

Don’t miss this quarter’s newsletter, which contains information on the health benefits of HIIT and information on the Johnson & Johnson Official 7 Minute Workout App, which may be downloaded for free in the Apple Store or on Google Play.

Field Access to Patient History Helps Emergency Responders Save Lives

The OC Health Care Agency's field implementation of an electronic system that enables the instantaneous sharing of a patient's medical history from ambulance to hospital was recognized for its innovation during the month of May by the Journal of Emergency Medical Services.

HCA's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) division became the first in the nation to fully launch the Search, Alert, File and Reconcile (SAFR) model of health information exchange in February of this year. "This system enables emergency medical technicians and paramedics here in Orange County to immediately access a patient's past medical history when evaluating and treating in the field, including information like recent hospitalizations, past medical history, medications, allergies, preferred healthcare facilities and end-of-life decisions, which can affect initial care decisions and long-term outcomes," Dr. Samuel Stratton, EMS Medical Director said.

An alert is then created that notifies the receiving hospital of the incoming patient and provides attending medical staff there with important information including age, gender, arrival time(s), vitals and any procedures performed in route, saving time and freeing staff to focus on what matters – patient care instead of paperwork.

EMS responders are mandated by California regulations and local policy to complete a Patient Care Report (PCR) whenever they make contact with a patient to document incident demographics, assessments and treatments. Historically, the PCR was completed on a paper form and a carbon copy was hand-delivered to the receiving hospital emergency department. While the paper PCR included a significant amount of information relevant to emergency patient assessments and care, it was often illegible and it was nearly impossible to extract data for prospective or retrospective analysis of the quality of patient care.

"This new program helps the sharing of secure access of a patient's health information, from dispatch of EMS to on-scene care, transporting of patients to the emergency department, admitting them to the hospital, discharging the patient, and reporting of the patient's outcome back to the EMS provider for data review," Dr. Stratton said. "It's improving the quality of care at all levels."

This new project demonstrates the commitment of the coordinated response and emergency medical care system that involves many people and multiple agencies who are ready every day for every kind of emergency. By allowing access to a patient's medical history, emergency responders are able to save lives with a greater result of success.

How does the Search, Alert, File and Reconcile (SAFR) Model Work?

When a medic evaluates and treats a patient in the field, they use their handheld ePCR device to search for the patient by first and last name, gender and date of birth. The field EMS data tablet connects to a cloud-based Health Information Exchange where the patient's cumulative hospital, medical provider and EMS electronic medical records is identified allowing the medic to immediately populate the ePCR with the patient's medications, allergies, recent hospitalizations and past medical history. Kids Become Microbiologists at Earth Day at the Bay

Kids aspiring to become future microbiologists learned first-hand how to test ocean water quality and understand how to keep Orange County's beaches safe during the annual Earth Day at the Bay celebration held at the Peter and Mary Muth Center in Upper Newport Bay.

Lab staff, who are certified public health microbiologists and laboratory assistants, taught kids and their parents how to detect contaminants in ocean or bay waters that may pose a health risk through hands-on demonstrations using the latest lab equipment to filter water and view the number of bacteria cultured from the water through a microscope.

"Kids and parents alike were fascinated to learn how different types of bacteria in our ocean water can make swimmers and surfers sick," said Megan Crumpler, Public Health Laboratory Director. "Showing them how we protect our waters through testing was a great way to encourage them to keep our planet safe and preserve it for the future."

Public Health lab staff work at the Water Quality Laboratory at the Back Bay Science Center located on Shellmaker Island in Newport Beach to conduct recreational water testing using rapid, advance methods to protect community health. Up to 140 shoreline sites in Orange County that represent 25 beaches are tested weekly. To learn more about the great work they do, visit www.ocwaterlab.com. Visit Earth Day at the Bay for more details about the event.

Alaska Airlines Moves to Terminal B

Alaska Airlines moved its John Wayne Airport operations to Terminal B on June 11. Alaska Airlines previously operated out of Terminal A.

Passengers flying on Alaska Airlines at John Wayne Airport will find their ticket counters, gates and baggage carousel in Terminal B. Alaska Airlines guests will retrieve their checked luggage at Baggage Carousel 3, and the Alaska Baggage Claim office is now located on the Arrival (lower) Level in Terminal B.

Alaska Airlines' move to Terminal B establishes balance to passenger traffic in the Thomas F. Riley Terminal and will improve the John Wayne Airport guest experience.

Paintings of Orange County Points of Interest and Landscapes on Display at John Wayne Airport

From June 15 – July 18, paintings by artist Tracey Moloney are on exhibit at John Wayne Airport (JWA) as part of JWA's Community Focus Space Program. The paintings may be viewed on the Departure (upper) Level near security screening areas in Terminals A, B and C, and on the Arrival (lower) Level adjacent to Baggage Carousels 1 and 4.

"Tracey Moloney's work immerses audiences into the paintings," said Orange County Chairwoman Michelle Steel. "Her art expressively captures Orange County historical landscapes from the present as well as the past."

As an artist and resident of Orange County, Moloney is passionate about painting landscapes and points of interest to capture and preserve open spaces of Southern California. She is influenced by the desire to capture history with the hope of showing the qualities of the extra-ordinary in everyday life. On her webpage, she quotes with a smile, "I have all the time in the world to paint my little heart out."

Tracey Moloney began her artistic journey at the age of 12 after enrolling at the Roslyn School of Painting in Roslyn, New York. Her instructor, Charles Pasquolina, helped her see the world through an artist's eyes. That experience and encouragement gave her the desire to pursue a career in art.

Ms. Moloney moved from New York to San Francisco in 1988, received her bachelor's degree in advertising from the University of San Francisco and her Fine Art Degree from the Academy of Art in San Francisco. While there she enjoyed several years of painting the city's urban landscape, as well as the city's tourist attractions for local clientele. In 1997, Moloney relocated to Southern California, named her decorative painting and mural business MY ART AND SOUL, and has since been working with both private and public entities for the past 20 years creating unique designs.

Her largest commission to date is with Mother's Market and Kitchen. Moloney recreated Orange County history with 80-foot murals depicting images of orange groves, strawberry fields and local farm stands. Her local Orange County works include Sam's Seafood, the Glider Inn, TK Burger, the Rx, the Balboa Fun Zone bumper cars, the Arches and more.

Please visit www.myartandsoul.net/ for more information about the artist's work.

Upcoming Community Focus Space Program artists include Tom Griffith (July 18 – August 17) and Joshua Madrid (August 17 – September 18).

OCCS and Community Partners Help Reunite Veteran's Family

In 2016, veteran Juan Ramos, his pregnant wife Aissa and their daughter, Sophia, were on the verge of homelessness after Juan lost his computer job.

"We were renting a room for all three of us," Aissa said. "We quickly depleted our savings on food and transportation." Shortly thereafter the Ramos family moved into the Orange County Rescue Mission's Tustin Veterans Outpost. It was there that Renee Ramirez, Orange County Community Services Director, met the family.

In May of this year, Ramirez received a phone call from Ramos informing her that his parents both passed away within six months of one another and he had inherited a home free and clear in his hometown of New York. He was able to round up enough money to send his wife and infant daughter home but was having a difficult time covering the costs for himself and his older daughter.

The separation was taking a toll on the family. Ramos, a very proud Desert Storm veteran was at a loss and didn't know how to reunite his family. Ramirez immediately reached out to community partners. Through Eddie Falcon, Department of Veteran Affairs, Ramos' situation was referred to the Goodwill Tierney Center. They were able to dedicate funds and on June 1, 2017, the Ramos family was reunited.

"Thanks to Renee, we were able to get the help we needed to get back home. Patrick Thompson from the Tierney Center was a huge help in expediting this whole process and he was able to get us tickets," Ramos said.

"I'm so happy for Juan and his beautiful family. I can't take any of the credit. Helping veterans is a priority for me and our County Board of Supervisors. It's truly a partnership; the County can't do it alone. We are lucky to have great community partners with similar goals," said Ramirez.

OC Fleet Services Applies New Decals to County Vehicles

As a major regional service provider, the County's fleet of more than 3,000 vehicles and equipment have a major presence on Orange County roads. Most of the County's vehicles out serving the community are easily recognized by appropriate decals such as OC Sheriff patrol vehicles and Probation vehicles. However, that is not always the case with many of the other essential vehicles and work trucks that also provide critical services to the public.

Therefore, in an effort to highlight the great work County employees do and their presence within OC communities, new County seals and decals are being placed on both the driver and passenger doors on most County vehicles. The new decals will be applied to fleet vehicles that are not already subject to departmental approved standards. All other standard vehicles will receive the new decals before they are placed into service or as they are brought in for regular maintenance.

Nixon's Orange County Roots

by Chris Jepsen

No Orange County native has evoked more emotion, analysis and attention than President Richard Milhous Nixon. From the Richard Nixon Library and Museum to the Mexican restaurants (e.g., El Adobe or Olamendi's) that highlight his favorite dishes on their menus, his influence is still tangible throughout the county.

Nixon was born in Yorba Linda on January 9, 1913, in the house his father Frank built just the year before. He was raised in the Quaker faith, and his father helped build the Yorba Linda Friends Church. Even today, the area's rolling hills and occasional patches of open land offer reminders of the agricultural Yorba Linda of Nixon's youth.

Young Richard attended Fullerton High School in the late 1920s before transferring to and graduating from Whittier High School. He then attended Whittier College and received a full scholarship to attend Duke University School of Law.

In 1939, newly minted attorney Richard Nixon opened his first law office on West La Habra Blvd., where the La Habra Community Center now stands. The following year, he proposed marriage to the love of his life, Thelma "Pat" Ryan, on the bluff tops of Dana Point. She accepted, beginning a 53-year partnership that weathered both the best and worst of times.

During World War II, Richard served in the Navy, both in the South Pacific and stateside. He launched his political career soon after leaving the service, and young Richard Nixon was on the fast track to big things. Still, as a congressman, senator and two-term U.S. Vice President, Nixon stayed in touch with his roots, often visiting family, friends, constituents and his old haunts.

He was a familiar face across the county, holding a campaign rally in front of the Yorba Linda home he was born in, speaking to massive crowds from the steps of the Old Courthouse and even camping with his old Boy Scout troop during the National Boy Scout Jamboree on the Irvine Ranch. In 1959, the whole Nixon family took part in dedicating Disneyland's new monorail.

Nixon's defeat in the 1962 California Governor's race led not only to his famous line about the press not having "Nixon to kick around anymore," but also to the creation of the Lincoln Club – which remains an Orange County Republican political powerhouse. Nixon's backers intended to prevent additional future losses. (One of those backers was Nixon's friend Walter Knott. Knott's Berry Farm always gave the Nixons the red carpet treatment.)

Nixon was elected President in 1968 and re-elected in 1972. His many achievements included pulling the U.S. out of Vietnam, opening relations with China and taking key steps to protect the environment. Meanwhile, in 1969, the Nixons purchased a beachside home in San Clemente, which they called "La Casa Pacifica." This Western Whitehouse would be the site of many momentous events, including a 1973 summit with Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev.

When Nixon resigned after the Watergate scandal, he and Pat flew directly back to Orange County, landing at Marine Corps Air Station El Toro and returning to Casa Pacifica. They were OC locals again (albeit with a Secret Service escort) until 1980, when they moved to New York.

In 1990, the Richard Nixon Library & Birthplace opened to much fanfare in Yorba Linda. In 1993, Pat Nixon was buried at the library, followed by Richard Nixon the following year – just feet from the little house in which he was born.

New Threat to Mac Computer Users

OSX/Dok, a new malware phishing campaign designed to target all OS versions of Mac computers has been detected. This malware contains a .ZIP archive named “Dokument.zip” and is distributed via email.

Currently, this does not affect iOS, iPhones or iPad devices.

The malware disables updates, installs various tools, installs a trusted certificate signed by Apple, executes itself and adds a macOS login item named “AppStore.” The user is then greeted with a window that looks like a valid macOS warning to inform the user of a supposed security issue on their Mac that requires an update as seen in the screenshot on the right. This warning message prevents the user from being able to do anything on the Mac computer until the fake update prompt has been accepted. Once the user selects the “Update All” button, it will prompt the Mac user to enter a password. Once the password is entered, the malware then begins administrative privileges on the Mac and begins to change the user’s Network settings to redirect all outgoing connections to a malicious proxy server which then allows the attacker to eavesdrop on all the user’s communications. The attacker is able to impersonate any website to trick Mac users into providing passwords for banking and popular online apps.

Note: Apple will never display warning messages or notifications for any Apple products and prompt you to install software updates. All macOS and Apple software updates are distributed through the Apple Store. To inquire if your personal device is affected, contact the Apple customer support services provided in your account.

If you have a County-issued MAC computer, please contact the Help Desk to assist you with removing the malware. If you use a Mac system as your personal computer, please refer to the following link on how to remove the malware:

SAFETY SPOTLIGHT

Practice Summer Walking Safety!

As summer days are longer and lighter, sometimes we may not be as aware of our personal safety while walking. Many County facilities are located in congested areas, so being aware and alert when walking is critical. Please remember these safety reminders and stay alert and aware of your surroundings.

- Walk in the crosswalks. They are there for a reason and even when it's lighter longer, drivers may be blinded by the sun or just not see you. Remember not to jaywalk!
- Look left and right before crossing a street—even on one-way streets.
- Watch for turning vehicles. Make sure the driver sees you and will stop for you.
- Do not wear earbuds or headphones while walking. It's great to hear music or chat on the phone while walking, but it can prevent you from being aware of your surroundings, people, horns, traffic, etc.
- Don't text and walk! Looking down at your phone is distracting and dangerous.
- Walk with someone else whenever possible.
- Report incidents immediately. If you encounter a problem or are bothered by something you see, report immediately to 911 or the nearest law enforcement.

Workplace Safety - Enjoy Summer and Stay Safe!

At the end of June the days are longer, the sun is higher in the sky and its rays give rise to a warming effect called summer – a great season of enjoyment. It is also a time to be aware of safety survival tips and protect yourself and your loved ones.

Summer is the most dangerous driving season due to increased road congestion as the result of vacation travel, and a rise in road work. Long-distance driving can be tedious and full of distractions, especially when young children in the back seat are on their 50th rendition of “Are we there yet?”

To ensure that your summer road trip is a safe one, let’s go over a few safety tips:

- Check your tires’ correct air pressure. (Under-inflation is the leading cause of tire failure; the number listed on the tire is not the correct pressure.)
- Check your headlights, brake lights, turn signals, emergency flashers, interior lights, and if towing, check your trailer brake lights and turn signals.
- Check your cooling system because your vehicle’s radiator needs water and antifreeze to keep your engine functioning properly.
- Check your fluid levels – oil, brake, transmission, power steering and windshield washer fluids.
- Pack an emergency kit to carry in case your vehicle breaks down (i.e., cell phone and charger, first aid kit, flashlight, flares and a white flag, nonperishable food, drinking water, and medicines).
- Keep your car’s interior heat down by managing glare with sunglasses and using a sun shield beneath your windshield when the car is parked; never leave a child or pet unattended in the vehicle.
- Buckle up on every trip and protect your children with the correct car seat, booster seat or seat belt that is appropriate for their size; children younger than 13 years old should ride in the back seat.
- Depending on where you are traveling, be cautious of summer storms – it takes 30 minutes of steady rain to wash the oil and dirt off the road.
- Share the road but never share lanes with motorcycles and when behind one, increase your following distance to four seconds or more.
- When going through construction zones follow all road signs and look out for pedestrians/workers.
- Avoid being distracted, and to keep little ones content provide them with their favorite books, videos and soft toys.

As you prepare to enjoy your summer remember “Summertime is always the best of what might be”

– Charles Bowden
